First sustainability report published

Karlsruhe, November 19, 2024 — With the publication of its first sustainability report, FIZ Karlsruhe is sending a clear signal for transparency and commitment in the area of sustainability. The report summarizes the institute's measures to date in the areas of social commitment, occupational health and safety and environmental protection and highlights the challenges that need to be overcome.

Last year, a comprehensive analysis was carried out to record the current status of sustainability activities. This involved collecting and evaluating data on topics such as energy consumption, CO₂ emissions, business trips and other aspects. The report provides an insight into the institute's progress and also shows where there is still room for improvement.

With the aim of becoming climate-neutral and sustainable in the long term, FIZ Karlsruhe plans to report annually on its activities and the milestones achieved. The sustainability report thus marks the beginning of a continuous development process that combines social, ecological and economic responsibility.

Further details can be found in the full report.

FIZ Karlsruhe – Leibniz Institute for Information Infrastructure is one of the leading addresses for scientific information and services and a member of the Leibniz Association. Our core tasks are to provide science and industry with professional research and patent information and to develop innovative information infrastructures, with, for example, a focus on research data management, knowledge graphs and digital platforms. To this end, we conduct our own research, cooperate with renowned universities and research associations and are internationally and interdisciplinarily networked. FIZ Karlsruhe is a non-profit limited liability company and one of the largest non-academic institutions of its kind. For more information, please visit www.fiz-karlsruhe.de/en
